EDITOR'S CHAIR

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We are very much gratified at the continued growth of THE CAUCASIAN. We try to give our friends the best paper in the State, and to make it grow better each week. But we might have done all this and still THE CAUCASIAN would not have had half the subscribers it has to day had it not been for the efforts of our friends to increase its circulation. Push and work tells. This is what the people are doing for THE CAUCASIAN. Every mail brings clubs from every part of the State. In yesterday's mail was a club from W. B. Felton, of Chowan county, with a club of 19 subscribers. He says "I did a few hours work for THE CAUCASIAN the past week and send you a club of 19 subscribers. You will see that some of them are new subscribers and some are renewals. Will send you another club soon."

This is the largest club we have received since last issue, but we received a number of ten or more. THE CAUCASIAN wants 20,000 subscribers during the present year, and with the continued help of our friends we will get them. Put the paper into every home in the State and the facts and the truth which it gives will do the rest.

A GAME OF BLUFF.

Nearly every day we see in the editorial columns of some of the old party dailies statements to the effect that the Peoples Party has attained its full growth,—that the Peoples Party is losing ground, &c. Yet the next issue of the same papers, and sometimes even in the same issue, we see statements to the effect that Congress must do something right away to save the Democratic party—that the rank and file are disappointed and disgruntled—that they will go into the Peoples Party if something is not done &c. These editors are amusing—they arouse our sympathy. They do a little downright lying—a game of bluff, then they get uneasy that lying only will not save the machine, so try to scare Congress into doing something.

Gov. Tillman is now reorganizing the military companies of the State and filling them with loyal soldiers. If he had done this sooner the disgraceful scenes of the last few weeks in that State would never have occurred. It was generally understood among the law defiers and rebellious citizens that the military companies would not obey his orders, and hence the flagrant defiance of law and order. The breeders of anarchy and hate in South Carolina have struck a buzz saw in Gov. Tillman.

The first installment of the Pollard Breckinridge scandal has closed. The jury returned a verdict of $15,000 in favor of Miss Pollard. Breckinridge takes an appeal and we suppose that the public is to be nauseated with a rehearsal of all the slush and slime that has filled the daily press since the suit began.

Coxey is still naming his camps for noted cranks. On last Friday night he named his camp U. S. Grant, on Saturday he named it Robert E. Lee. He certainly will not forget Thomas Jefferson and Hickory Jackson, two of the greatest cranks this country has yet seen.

A correspondent from Haywood Co. says that a few years ago the sheriff did not return a single insolvent man in the county, while this year the Sheriff's returns show 200 men insolvent, who had always paid their taxes before.

The attorneys of Hon. Thomas E. Watson were in Washington last week before the Committee on Elections. They presented facts and unanswerable arguments to show that Watson was elected and Black was counted in.

HE FALLS ASLEEP.

THE GREAT CAROLINIAN PASSES AWAY AS PEACEFULLY AS AN INFANT SLEEPING ON ITS MOTHER'S BREAST.

STRICKEN WITH APPOPLEXY SENATOR VANCE DIES UNCONSCIOUS OF PAIN TO HIMSELF AND OF GRIEF TO OTHERS.

His Last Words were of Devotion to and Love for the People. His Great Heart was Full of North Carolina—A Pathetic Narrative of His Last Conversation and a Brief Sketch of His Life—Some Incidents of His Boyhood and Manhood Days.

(From The Caucasian Correspondent in Washington.)

WASHINGTON, April 16.—It was nearly midnight when the great soul of the patriotic Vance passed into eternity. About noon Saturday, he was stricken with apoplexy. Physicians were hurriedly summoned, but the mark of death was on the stricken man. He was unconscious up to the hour of death and passed away as peacefully as an infant sleeping on its mother's breast. At his bedside was the tender, devoted wife, now prostrated by grief, and his devoted, loyal friend, Marshal Allison, of the Western district. On one side of the dying man's couch knelt his own pastor, Dr. Pitzer, of the Southern Presbyterian church; on the other a Catholic priest. He slept well during Friday night and up to noon on Saturday he was cheerful and hopeful.

HIS LAST WORDS

Were said to Mr. Allison on Friday evening. Expecting to leave the city on Saturday Mr. Allison called to say good-bye. After an hour's conversation he rose to leave, extended his hand and said good-bye. "No," said Senator Vance, "not good-bye, from; say good-night, and come back to-morrow to say good-bye." Returning to the residence about two o'clock in the afternoon Saturday he found him unconscious. The conversation on the preceding evening has reference to his public services and to early and life-long friendships. His big heart seemed full of tender recollections and he spoke pathetically and affectionately of his family and friends and charitably of all who had him. He felt keenly the helplessness that kept him from his public duties. Speaking of this he said:

"It is my decided inclination to resign; I think about it seriously; it is a duty I owe to the people, but it is a question of bread and meat; it is all I have got and though duty inclines me to give up my commission I cannot think the people whom I have so long and so faithfully served expect me to do it. I have been a long time in public life, but I am very poor. I don't think my worst enemy will say I am dishonest, but if I had my life to live over again I would lay something aside for old age and my children."

DEVOTION TO NORTH CAROLINA.

Constantly during the conversation he al-

A CARD FROM PRESIDENT WINSTON.

Every Institution of Learning in the State is needed and he is Proud of Them all.—If he were a Baptist he Would be Proud of the State University.

(Biblical Recorder.)

To the Baptists of North Carolina:—Various communications have appeared recently in the Recorder and other papers, suggesting either directly or indirectly that the University is not friendly to the Baptist people and their interests. There seems to be a feeling in some quarters that the success of the University means the failure of Wake Forest College. Such a result has not been produced in other States, nor does it seem likely in North Carolina. On the contrary all of our colleges have flourished together. From 1868 to 1875 the University was practically closed. But Wake Forest did not flourish during this period. With the re-opening of the University in 1875 began an educational revival. Since then Wake Forest has not decayed in proportion at the University has grown. On the contrary it has doubled the number of students and trebled its endowment.

As an educator and a citizen of North Carolina I rejoice that Baptist philanthropy, Baptist energy and Baptist self-sacrifice, in establishing and endowing Wake Forest, have added over a quarter of a million dollars to the educational wealth of the State, thereby enabling some two hundred young men annually to enjoy the benefits of higher education. Instead of aiming to cripple or destroy such a college, I would rejoice to see twenty like it in North Carolina. The State is made richer and our people are made better by all its schools and colleges. There is need for every one of them and more. I rejoice in the prosperity of the A. & M. College, with its two hunderd students, of Trinity, of Davidson, of Wake Forest, of Elon, of Guilford, of Yadkin, of North Carolina, College, of Catawba, of Weaverville, of Ruther ford, of Peace, of Salem, of St. Mary's, of the Greensboro Normal and Industrial, of the Greensboro Female College, of the Oxford Seminary, of the Chowan Institue, in short of all schools from the log cabin up. There is need for every school or college that has students.

Were I a Baptist, I would rejoice in the success of the State University, I would rejoice and be exceeding glad that so many Baptist boys are enjoying its great opportunities; that the two best scholars in the University are Baptist boys, devout church members, boys in humble financial condition, one a painter the son of a painter, now educating himself by loans from the Deems Fund and from private sources; I would rejoice that so many of the leading trustees and that five full professors in the Faculty are Baptist. I would thank God and take courage that the Baptists are seizing and using such fine opportunities for culture and improvement. I would tell my people that they needed not only Wake Forest College and a great Baptist Female University, but also the A. & M. College, the Normal and Industrial School for woman, the University of North Carolina, Judson College and as many others as we could use for the improvement of Baptist boys. I would cry out "open wide the doors of learning and let the Baptist boys and girls go in."

I have never desired nor attempted to toll away students from Wake Forest. Last summer my clerk distributed 25,000 catalogues, circulars and pamphlets (all printed) in North Carolina, Virginia, South Carolina and Tennessee. They were sent broadcast. About ten thousand went to pupils in schools and colleges, among them, Wake Forest. I did not single out Wake Forest nor any other school or college. I ordered them sent to all. I neither expected nor desired to entice students from other colleges. As a matter of fact there is only one student in the University, pursuing non-profession all students, who came from Wake Forest. My purpose was to advertise our professional schools and graduate courses. Were it possible, I would put a University catalogue in the hands of every man and woman, every boy and girl in America. The fact that such documents were sent to the son of the President of Wake Forest College ought to show their wide distribution and the entire absence of hidden designs on my part. I distinctly state that I have never knowingly solicited any student to come from Wake Forest to the University. On the contrary I have distinctly advised several not to come.

SATURDAY, APRIL 28TH.

PRES BUTLER CALLS ON EVERY ALLIANCEMAN TO OBSERVE THE DAY,

AND CONTRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF OUR LATE NATIONAL PRESIDENT.

OFFICE OF
PRESIDENT N. F. A. & I. U.,
Goldsboro, N. C., Mar. 31, '94

To The Sub-Alliances of the Various States of the United States:

The State Alliance of North Carolina in session at Greensboro in August, 1893, passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, The Polk Memorial Association has not yet succeeded in raising sufficient funds to erect a monument; and whereas we believe that our Alliance brethren are willing and anxious to aid them in this noble purpose; therefore be it

Resolved, By the North Carolina Farmers' State Alliance, That April 28, 1894, it being the birthday of Col. L. L. Polk, be set apart as Polk Memorial day, and that each Sub-Alliance in the State be requested to meet on that day for the purpose of raising and collecting funds for this purpose. Exercises to be conducted in such a manner as shall suit the pleasure and convenience of each Alliance.

Resolved, further, That after the success of this object is assured, the Supreme Council of the National Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union be petitioned to meet in annual session in the city of Raleigh and take part either in laying the corner-stone of said monument or unveiling the same."

The Supreme Council of the N. F. A. and I. U. in session at Topeka, February, 1894, resolved to hold the next session at Raleigh, N. C., where Col. Polk is buried, if the Polk Monument could be completed by that time, and further called upon the membership of the Alliance all over the Union to assist in the commendable enterprise.

Certainly every allianceman in America should not only feel it a duty but consider it a special privilege and pleasure to contribute to the building of this monument as a tangible evidence of our esteem and love for our late National President. Therefore I request every Sub-Alliance Lodge within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Council of the N. F. A. and I. U. to hold a Polk memorial meeting on Saturday April 28th for the purpose set out above.

I suggest that after raising as large a cash contribution as you can for this purpose at said meeting, that you call upon each brother present to state how much he will pledge to pay himself or to raise by solicitation by Nov. 1st, 1894.

Yours fraternally,
MARION BUTLER,
Pres. N. F. A. & I. U.

(All friendly papers requested to copy.)

P. S. Forward the amount raised with the names of those contributing to Marion Butler, Goldsboro, N. C., who is President of the Polk Memorial Association. Also send the name and postoffice address of each brother who pledges to raise a certain amount by Nov. 1st, 1894.

THE POLK MEMORIAL FUND.

How to Raise the Fund.—A Little Sum From Each One Will Suffice.

MR. EDITOR:—A neat little sum has already been paid in for the purpose of erecting a splendid monument at the grave of our lamented leader, Col. L. L. Polk, in Oakwood Cemetery, Raleigh. Some has been pledged but has not yet come in.

In order that the work may begin all the money that can be raised must be forthcoming. Many true reformers throughout the United States intend to contribute, but are waiting for the Board of Trustees to let out the contract. The money must be in sight before this can be done.

It is hardly necessary to say anything as to the importance of erecting a handsome monument. To build a monument in keeping with the love the people had for Col. Polk would require an unreasonable sum of money. Yet we cannot and will not be satisfied with an ordinary monument. His work, his personality will live in our hearts, but our children ought to know how we appreciated one so true and brave.

Can we raise the money! I for one say we can. If every one of President Polk's friends and admirers through the State and United States would but contribute 5 cents each, a beautiful monument could be erected at once. Let the reform press push this matter, not in a half hearted way, but with energy, presistently. Every man, woman and child can do something. Each family can contribute the price of a bushel of grain or an equal amount from some other source and never miss it. If a great many dollars were required from each one in these hard times it could not be raised. But a small amount can and should be sent to Mr. Hal W. Ayer, Raleigh, or President Marion Butler, Goldsboro, N. C., and sent right away. Let us go to work.

Allianceman.

MOORE COUNTY WILL OBSERVE THE DAY.

To the Brothers and Sisters of Moore County Sub-Alliances.

To show to the brethern of the Farmers' Alliance through the State that we still live in the good cause, I am requested by Pine Knot Sub-Alliance to say that to show our respect to our lamented brother, L. L. Polk, we intend to dedicate our new hall on the 28th day of April, 1894, that being the birthday of our departed brother who laid the foundation of our brotherhood. The brothers and sisters of other Sub-Alliances are cordially invited to take part with us in a basket social. We expect to have an able speaker to address the meeting.

By order of Pine Knot Sub-Alliance. No. 2,242, Southern Pines, Moore County, N. C.

C. T. Sunbury, Pres't.
F. Dixon, Sec'y.

N. B.—There will be a collection for the Memorial Fund.

A MOST WORTHY OBJECT.

(National Watchman.)

We should call special attention to President Butler's proclamation to Alliancemen published in another column. He exhorts them to celebrate Col. Polk's birthday, April 28th; by meeting together and making a contribution to the memorial fund. This is a most worthy object, and though our people are poor they should do all in their power to honor the memory of one who gave himself for their cause. Big-hearted, beloved Polk! Let the memorial be worthy of the man.

THE MECKLENBURG DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE OF 1894.

Harry Hinton Endorses the Idea—But it May be a n ar cut for Politicians to Raleigh and Washington—We must Repudiate Cleveland or the People will Repudiate us—Joe Caldwell in Dangers.

(Special Cor. to THE CAUCASIAN.)

To be free is to know one's rights and to maintain them.

Two things needful; to know and to do. That is all; but 'tis a phrase that fills the world. time and eternity with the magnitude of its import.

In 1795 Mecklenburg made a declaration of independence from the King of England. Now Col. Caldwell, highlander or lowlander, we know not, puts forth another declaration of independence from King Grover and all his pie-eaters.

Times past we have gloried in old Mecklenburg's historic fame and she comes forth under the leadership of the prince of journalists and declares that this good old State of ours ought to be a free and independent State from the Democratic hosts and fight under a State flag, make a State campaign and interpret party laws by its own courts. This is right. This is knowing one's rights and maintaining them. We have hoisted the flag of rebellion and put at defiance all his commands—shouted ourselves hoarse trying to rally our countrymen against him—therefore we second the motion of this great Colonel to be once more free. But every sweet has its bitter, and my sympathies are drawn out for little Ruth and the baby Esther when their male parent shall be brought into disgrace by our action. Anyhow, I am for independence. Yes sir, hoist our State flag, march our columns to the sweet music of home rule, and read out of our number every hellscallion who does not come under the law we fix for them.

Goldsbugs, they must go. High protectionists, they must go. Bond sellers, they must go. Those anti-income tax "fellers" must be out. We are going to police the camp clean of all hurtful and baneful material and make a clean North Carolina campaign. This project of Mecklenburg meets my hearty approval and every paper of the land should advertise it far and wide. Only one so far has kicked outright and he better look to his laurels.

The careless reader might suppose that this movement means to form a new party or to make one cause with the People's party. It means neither. It is for the purpose of exonerating the State from all odium cast upon the hitherto clean escutcheon of the Democratic party till Grover and his vandals made a spittoon of its gaberdine. We will not repudiate our name, Democrat, a name made so famous by our dead and great, a name fit to conjure with, a charm that lulls to sleep. Deny our name? No, never, never! It sounds like music across the stilly waters when the round moon casts its sheen thereon in spangles of silver. It soothes the weary to contentment and calms the aching heart. We will hold on to the name and when ten years or twice ten years of our pilgrimage in the wilderness has been done, may be under the blessings of a benign Providence we shall meet again beyond the Potomac river and have a good chance to save the Union and protect the rights of the people—then there will be more rejoicing over the lost which is found than if we had staid all the time with the old man at home. We will have a time.

Still we may be making a mistake and instead of going on a pilgrimage far into another country we are aiming at a near cut to Raleigh and Washington—the goal of our highest ambition and are simply leaving Cleveland and his Goths as bad company. The people don't like them and we must please the people. So we separate at the parting of the roads. We take a near cut through the woods; they travel on the King's highway. If they get there before we do they can tell their comrades we are coming under our own State flag. If they don't like it they can lump it and we will fight it out in the capitol. We will have no fighting on the road. We will have no contention on the way. Our motto shall be: "Get there, Eli."

Perhaps this is the purpose of this new Mecklenburg Declaration. Anyhow it is a declaration of indesendence from that "Fat Flab" at Washington, and it pleases us hugely.

Having chalked out the way and the camping ground, let us press on to victory; organize our forces, appoint captains and general commanders. There is nothing like organization and discipline in the face of a vigilant enemy. The road to office

STEWART TO COXEY.

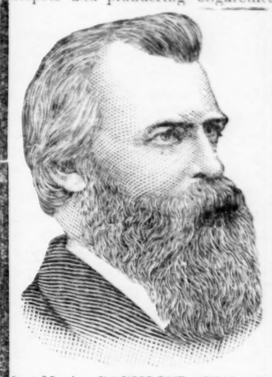
THE VENERABLE SENATOR SENDS A GREAT MESSAGE TO THE LEADER OF THE UNEMPLOYED.

HE TELLS HIM TO STOP HIS "FOOL'S ERRAND."

To go Home and Prepare to March on to the Ballot Box—The only Battlefield on Which the People can Win.—He says that Coxey and his Followers Voted to Make the Times Hard and Should now Vote to Change Them.

"United States Senate, March 24, 1894.—To Gen. J. S. Coxey, Massillon, Ohio: Dear Sir—The preservation of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness was intrusted to the people under the Constitution of the United States. A free ballot was the means by which the sovereign people could retain the rights acquired by the patriots who gained the independence and established the government of the United States.

There was a time when the ballot placed the control of the government in Washingtons, Jeffersons, Jacksons and Lincolns. Such use of the ballot sent terror and dismay to tyrants, despots and plundering oligarchies.



I AM A POPULIST—WM. M STEWART.

throughout the world. The enemies of justice and human rights predicted that the success of the ballot was temporary; that man was not capable of self-government.

The destruction of ancient republics and the repeated failures of the people to govern themselves were cited in proof of their contention that despotism, oppression and slavery were the fate of the human race. There have been no Washingtons, Jeffersons, Jacksons or Lincolns elected president of the United States in the two decades.

A soulless despot of alien origin is monarch of the commercial world.

His name is Money.

His instruments of oppression are banks and bonds.

His servants are administrative and legislative bodies.

The army you are collecting used the ballot to put the Army, the Navy and the Treasury Department under the control of banks and bond-holders, and place in the halls of congress representatives to do the bidding of money changers.

ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY FOR FREEDOM.

The ides of November are approaching. An opportunity for the people to strike for liberty will again be presented.

The old parties which have surrendered the rights of the people to the rule of concentrated capital, will ask for a renewal of their lease of power at the ballot box. Every movement of the people to obtain relief outside of the forms of law will be denounced as anarchy. The purse strings of the nation are held by congress under the dictation of the administration, and the President is Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy of the United States.

The attempt of a starving multitude to march to Washington will furnish an excuse for using the power of the governments of the States and of the United States to put down anarchy and insurrection. The vigor with which the laws will be executed against starving people will be an argument in the next election for continuing in power concentrated capital as a necessity for the maintenance of law and order. The sufferings of the people are the result of electing the men to office who do the bidding of the money powers, which, by legislation and administration, have destroyed more than one-half of the metallic money of the world and cornered the other half.

WHAT REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC RULE HAS DONE.

Twenty years of uninterrupted rule of banks and bondholders has concentrated the wealth of the world in the hands of the few and enabled them to seize the telegraph, the press and nearly every other avenue through which the people can obtain information of the cunning devices by which the parasites absorb what the masses produce.

THE ONE BATTLE GROUND OF VICTORY.

There is but one battlefield where the forces of liberty and equality can meet and overthrow the enemy of human rights. There is no law now on the statute books authorizing the President of the United States to march an army against the people at the ballot box. Every attempt to place the ballot box under the control of Federal authority has thus far been successfully resisted. Let your army be reinforced by the millions of the unemployed and by the wealth-producers of the nation and be thoroughly mobilized for the battle in November, when a victory for the rights of man against the despotism of banks and bonds is possible.

Abandon the folly of marching an unarmed multitude of starving laborers against the modern appliances of war under the control of a soulless money trust. Such folly will augment the power of the oppressor and endanger the safety of the ballot itself. Disorder is all that is required to insure the supremacy of the armed forces of the money powers at the polls. The Constitution of the United States is our charter of liberty. It has been subverted by an oligarchy of concentrated wealth. False agents of the people have betrayed their trust and brought misery and want where abundance and prosperity seemed assured.

GIVE NO TRAITOR A SECOND CHANCE.

Traitors to human rights have usurped the power of the government through the machinery of party and the arts of demagogues. Hurl them from power. Trust no man who once deceived you. Let the government of the United States administer for and not against the people. Use the ballot to protect liberty, justice and equal rights, and not to elevate to power the agents of banks and bonds to perpetuate the rule of an oligarchy of wealth."

A FIGHT IN GREENVILLE.

Mr. Forbes Whips the Editor The Reflector—Cause, Personal Abuse in the Columns of His Paper.

Greenville, N. C., April 12, '93.

EDITOR CAUCASIAN:—For some considerable time the editor of the Greenville Reflector has been very denunciative in his articles on the Populists in this county. To such an extent has he carried this extreme bitterness that even his strongest Democratic friends were beginning to condemn his course as unpolitic in the extreme. Mr. A. A. Forbes, one of the best men in the county, on account of his populistic ideas has, on a few occasions caught the slurs of his muddy pen. Mr. Forbes not being willing to submit to his false and abusive personalities longer, quietly informed the editor last Monday that unless he desisted from personal attacks upon him he would give him a genteel thrashing. Whereupon the editor informed him that he would use his name whenever he saw proper so to do, and immediately a fisticuff ensued in which the editor came out at a John Gilpin rate decidedly at the small end of the horn. The fracas began in front of the court house but the Reflector man, seeing that it would be foolish for him to undertake to stand his ground, decided that it would be better for him to depend on his rate of speed for protection, as Mr. Forbes is an old man and could not keep up. He ran in the office of the Register of Deeds when friends interfered and parted them before any serious damage was done.

The time has been in North Carolina when an editor of a rank Democratic sheet could carse out and abuse the Radical party and the negroes, and that time may be now, but the honest yeomanry of the country who have shown that they were willing to lay down their lives for their country's honor, will certainly not be less vindicative in the protection of their private and personal rights and privileges. "ZEB VANCE IS DEAD."

The State mourns the loss of its greatest son. For months the people of the State and his friends and admirers all over the Union (for indeed he had them as far as his name and fame was known) have feared that the end was near, yet when the sad news come it was a shock that was felt in every spot of Tarheeldom from the topmost peaks of the Great Smoking Mountains to the Atlantic waves. He was great in mind, great in heart, great in soul. The people have lost an eagle-eyed and incorruptible guard who stood on the watch-tower of their liberties, they have lost their ablest and purest advocate and defender in the great battle that is now being waged between humanity and the grasping and merciless greed of corporate power and gold monopoly. His death comes when the people needed his services most. In our news columns will be found a full account of his last illness and death, the program for the funeral and a biographical sketch from his boyhood's days up. At another time we will present some other thoughts concerning his life, the lesson it teaches and with especial reference to the last year of his life.

THE OBSERVER'S ENTERPRISE.

Sunday's dailies all contained the sad announcement of Senator Vance's death. Monday morning the Charlotte Observer was out in an extra edition, giving further details, the program of the funeral, and a lengthy biographical sketch of the dead patriot. It was the only daily in the State that got out an issue Monday. A few weeks ago when the South Carolina trouble was at its heighth and no one knew what would happen next in our sister State, the Observer got out an extra edition on Monday giving the latest news from the scenes of war. While THE CAUCASIAN differs greatly with the Observer politically, yet as a North Carolinian, we are proud of a paper that exhibits such enterprise. North Carolina would soon be something more than a strip of land between Virginia and South Carolina, if we had more enterprise and push in business as well as journalism. The biographical sketch of Senator Vance which appears in another column we clip from the Observer.

THE UNIVERSITY AND THE BAPTIST.

In another column will be found "A card from President Winston," clipped from the Biblical Recorder.

It seems that there has been a tendency for some time from certain quarters in this State to make war on the University. And now President Taylor, of Wake Forest College, is writing a series of articles for the Biblical Recorder on this line.

Dr. Winston's card is in good taste and in the proper spirit. We can't see why the Baptist should make war on the State University any more than any other denomination. Baptists are North Carolinians as well as other denominations, and should have State pride in all institutions of learning. But if war is to be made on the University because it is a State institution, then for the same reason war should be made on the Agricultural and Mechanical College at Raleigh, and on the Industrial and Normal school for girls at Greensboro. THE CAUCASIAN regrets to see any spirit of warfare grow up between any of these institutions. Instead of pulling each other down we would rather see them co-operate to lift North Carolina to a higher plane intellectually and morally.

THE CAUCASIAN wants to see every State, denominational and private institutions of learning succeed and prosper, and will ever do all we can to that end. Instead of one State school for girls at Greensboro we would like to see several more. There should be at least one at Goldsboro and one at Asheville, and all three would soon be filled with girls,—girls who will otherwise grow up and have to assume the important and responsible duties of womanhood without an education.

Do you know a good man, whose interests are the same as yours who has some influence with his neighbors, yet who votes the old party ticket? If so, send us his address with fifty cents and we will send him THE CAUCASIAN till after the election. Don't send us the names of men who are expecting an office from the old parties, for if you converted him, he would vote the same way, but send us the names of good substantial citizens, who work for a living and who want to do and will do the right when they know what it is. Such men are the salt of the earth and every one of them converted will be worth ten votes to the Peoples Party.

Part 4 of the "Columbian Album" is now ready. Send ten cents and one coupon.

TWO SCHEMES—WHICH?

As our readers have already been informed, before Cleveland voted the Bland bill, day after day large delegations of congressmen and politicians (especially from the South and West) called upon him and begged, and pleaded that he would sign the Bland bill, assuring him that there was nothing in it to grievously interfere with the plans of the goldbugs; and while admiting that there was very little in it of benefit to the people, yet impressing upon him that it was of supreme importance that the bill should be signed to furnish the party with some campaign thunder for the next election. As we have said before, we expected the President to see their point, and therfore sign the bill. But in as much as these congressmen and politicians (since the veto) are not leaving and repudiating the party but have become very quiet and are laying plans for the next campaign, we are ready to believe that some promise was made them by the President and the powers that stand by him.

As it appears to us, this promise was to the effect that something would be done on the State Bank question, which would be less objectionable to the goldbugs than the seigniorage bill in asmuch as the State Banks issue would be on bonded bonds, and the whole thing based on a gold basis. The politicians realize that the very word "State Banks" (even though it is used to cover a gold-bug scheme) can be used to fool thousands of voters. This, or some bogus reform legislation, may have been the promise. Or it may be that the politicians were assured that MONEY was the most powerful agent in carrying elections, and that with a sufficient quantity of it as a corruption fund that a party that had even betrayed the people might be able to buy its way into power again. If this assurance was made, then the next campaign will see more boodle floating than ever before in the history of the country. The sugar trust alone has gotten a concession in the tariff bill that would justify it in putting several million dollars in the Democratic campaign fund. The whiskey trust, if the tax is put up to $1.10 per gallon will make one million dollars clear the first year and could well afford to put this in the campaign fund. If the tax is put up to $150. a gallon, with the two months clause inserted with reference to bonded ware-houses, over six million dollars clear profit would go in the pockets of the trusts and they could well afford to put nearly all, if not all of this in the next Democratic campaign fund.

These two trusts alone would be able to raise the largest campaign fund to help elect another traitorous servile congress that this country has ever seen; to say nothing of the coal trust, to say nothing of the bond holders of Wall Street and London, to say nothing of dozen other monopolies and trust that have been befriended by this Congress at the expense of the people. The liberty of the people as well as their pocket-books are to-day at the mercy of the enemies of our government, and every year that the people delay in driving these traitors from power, adds two fold to the danger. The people are growing poorer, less able to defend their rights, the monopolies growing richer and better able to buy up an election, or buy a congress when elected. What hope is there of reforming the Republican party which started this iniquity? What hope is there of reforming the Democratic party which, after denouncing this iniquity and promising to reform it, has deliberately betrayed the people, surrendered to their enemies and made conditions even worse? There is but one hope, let the people everywhere rally under the banner of the People's party, and drive the money changers from the temple of liberty.

P. S. The above was written for last week's CAUCASIAN, but was crowded out. Since that time a Democratic caucus has been called to consider the State Bank question. Watch this move. THE CAUCASIAN will give the facts.

THE PEOPLES PARTY AND THE PEOPLE

Senator Hill in his speech in the Senate on the Wilson tariff bill asked why the Democrats had put an income tax feature in it. He said that there was nothing in the Chicago platform about such a tax. He said the only party that put such a plank in its platform and advocated it on the stump before the people was the Peoples Party. He asked if it was necessary to steal the thunder of the Peoples Party to save the Democratic party in the South and West. He said the Democratic party had better do what it promised.

The fact is the Democratic party of the South and West would to-day try to steal the whole platform of the Peoples Party (which is pure Democracy) if the goldbug wing of the party will give them permission to do so.

See THE CAUCASIAN'S fund for the Polk Monument on the fourth page.

THE POLK MONUMENT.

On June the 23rd, 1892, an association known as the "Polk Memorial Association," was organized in this State for the purpose or erecting a Monument to the memory of the late Col. L. L. Polk. A board of trustees was elected, with Marion Butler for President, and an Executive Committee elected with Mr. M. B. Brought on as chairman. Mr. H. W. Ayer was elected Secretary Treasurer. Mr. Ayer went to work at once soliciting funds for the Monument, but in spite of his assiduous efforts we regret to say, the fund has grown slowly.

In answer to a letter from the President of the board of Trusstees under date of April the 3rd, he states that the net amount now on hand is $220.26. Last fall THE CAUCASIAN seeing that the fund was not growing as rapidly as it should, undertook to raise a supplementary fund for this purpose by appealing through its columns week after week. We have published the names of those contributing, and the amount sent in by each. THE CAUCASIAN fund up to date amount to $245.35 making the total fund available for the Monument up to date $465.51. An amount at least three or four times as large should, and must be raised, to erect a Monument such as THE CAUCASIAN would be willing to see placed over the remains of Col. Polk. It is certainly a small matter for an organization as big as the Farmers' Alliance to raise a fund sufficient to erect a creditable Monument. We have already neglected this matter too long. Saturday April the 28th, is the anniversary of Col. Polk's birth-day. Let a memorial meeting be held in every neighborhood, and funds be raised to build a Monument to his Memory. This big hearted patriot gave his life for the the cause of humanity, and if he were living to-day, inspired by a pure heart and a noble resolve, would be a tremendous power for truth and right in this great strugle between monopoly and the people for mastery. But an inscrutable providence saw fit to take him for some good cause beyond our wisdow to see, and while the memory of this big hearted patriot enshrined in the people is his proudest Monument, and more durable than marble or brass, yet Alliancemen everywhere owe it to themselves to give to the world some evidence of their love and esteem for him. Let us build this Momument, and let us do it now, then let us invite the next Supreme council of the Alliance to hold its session in Raleigh, and take part in the unvailing ceremonies. Remember the Monument will be built. The fund raised will be put in a Monument, if it is not a creditable one, then the blame will lie at the door of each individual member of the organization; if it is a creditable one it will be a pleasure and a pride to you all your life, and your children, to know that you contributed your mite to this worthy and noble object.

YOU AND YOUR BROTHER.

There are 50,000 voters in North Carolina who honestly want reform and knew in 1892 what were the real causes of the hard times, yet who voted the Democratic ticket. They had been educated in the Alliance. Each one of the 50,000 men had a neighbor who was also educated in the Alliance, but who voted the People's party ticket. Nearly every one of these 50,000 Democratic Alliancemen went to his neighbor and urged him to vote the Democratic ticket. He said, "we both want the same thing. We know that these bad laws were put on us by the Republican party, and if the Democratic party gets in power it will repeal all those bad laws and give us honest reform."

The People's party Allianceman said: "I know they promise to do so, but I believe that the Democratic party is controlled by the money power just like the Republican party. The gold bugs controlled the National convention, nominated a gold bug and if he is elected he and his administration will serve the gold power."

D. Allianceman—No, you are mistaken. They all say that Cleveland is the best friend that the people have ever had and that he has a backbone as big as a telegraph pole.

P. P. A.—I know they say so, but I don't believe it.

D. A.—Well the party promises to do right by us, and I think we ought to give them "a chance."

Now dear Democratic Allianceman, have you been back to see the People's party Allianceman since the election? Have you been te reason with him and show him that he was wrong and that you was right? No. But you would have, if the Democratic party had done as it promised.

Has the P. P. Allianceman been to see you and reason with you? If he has not, he should; and if he does not, don't wait for him. Simply go over to see him and say, "Well, brother, you were right and in the next fight I am with you."

There are men all over the South and West who are to-day denouncing goldbugs, yet who stand ready as often as the opportunities occur to serve them at the expense of the people.

HE FALLS ASLEEP.

luded to his State and his great wish to go once more among the people. "I may never live," he said "to get to North Carolina, but the great desire of my heart is to meet the people and tell them how zealously I am ready to serve them. I think," he said with a smile on his haggard face, "I could tell them some things that others might not like to talk about. All that I am, all that I have ever had, I owe to the people of North Carolina. They know, I am happy to believe, how deeply I appreciate their confidence and how grateful I feel to them. Come what may I have faith in their love and devotion and believe they will never see me suffer."

TEARS OF A DYING MAN.

Turning the conversation to his family, as he talked great tears filled his eyes and he wept as though his heart was crushed. It was then ten o'clock. Mr. Allison left him in good spirits and on his return to-day was shocked at the sight of the unconscious dying man. It was the last connected conversation with any one immediately preceding death. The voice that has so long aroused the manhood and patriotism of his people, that has so eloquently and boldly vindicated their integrity is hushed forever.

FUNERAL CEREMONIES.

Four o'clock to-morrow public ceremonies will be held in the Senate Chamber; thence the remains will be taken by special train over the Richmond & Danville road to Raleigh. On Tuesday they will lie in state in the capitol, final interment taking place at Asheville on Wednesday. There are buried a mother, wife and son.

ZEBULON BAIRD VANCE

Was born May 13th, 1830, and if he had lived to his next birthday he would have been 64 years old. He was born in Buncombe county and was educated at Washington College, Tenn., and at the University of North Carolina.

He was elected to the Legislature in 1852; was 28 years old when elected to congress in 1858. His first public utterance as a member of the House was a declaration of fidelity to the people. Discussing the tariff bill then pending he said:

"It is time, sir, we were considering the ways and means of doing something for the people—that vast and ever striving mass whose servants and Representatives we are; by whose intelligent industry and unceasing toil, by whose early rising and late lying down, the government receives its protection and its bread, its glory and its prosperity."

He was a whig and a Union man. He opposed secession, but gave his first allegiance to the State. He raised a company, was elected captain and soon afterwards elected colonel of the afterwards famous "26th North Carolina."

WAR GOVERNOR.

In 1862 he was elected governor while serving in the field. Through his efforts North Carolina lead the muster roll in the Southern army and through his efforts the North Carolina soldiers were the best fed and the best clad troops in the army. Devotion to our State soldiery caused an open rupture with the Confederate authorities at Richmond and threatened at one time serious consequences.

At the close of the war he was arrested at Statesville, brought to Washington and here imprisoned in the "old capitol prison," which until a few years ago, stood under the shadow of the Senate Chamber. He was pardoned by President Johnson in 1867; was elected to the United States Senate in 1872, but was not admitted on account of political disabilities; was a candidate for the Senate in 1873; was nominated by the Democratic caucus, but was defeated by a fusion of Republican and Democratic votes. Sixteen Democrats bolted the caucus nomination and with the aid of the Republicans elected A. S. Merrimon.

The people rebuked the bolters by electing him governor in 1876 and in 1879 was elected to the United States Senate. The vacancy caused by his untimely death will be filled by appointment by the governor, the term lasting until the Legislature meets and elects a successor.

JONATHAN EDWARDS.

FUNERAL IN THE SENATE.

The Pall Bearers and the Committee of Escort to Carolina.

(Special to THE CAUCASIAN)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16.—The ceremonies at the Capitol to-day over the remains of Senator Vance were very impressive. No man in congress is so generally beloved and admired. The President of the Senate has appointed the following pall bearers:

Senators Morrill (Rep Vt), Sherman (Rep Ohio), Harris (Dem Tenn) and McPherson (Dem N J).

The committee of escort on the part of the Senate to accompany the remains to North Carolina is as follows:

Ransom (Dem N C), Gray (Dem Del), Blackburn (Dem Ky), Coke (Dem Texas), Chandler (Rep N H), DuBois (Rep Idaho), White (Dem Cal), and Manderson (Rep Neb).

And on the part of the House the following committee was appointed by Speaker Crssp:

Messrs. Henderson, Alexander and Crawford of North Carolina; Brookshire, of Indiana; Black, of Illinois; Daniel, of New York; Strong, of Ohio; Blair, of New Hampshire; and Houk, of Tenn.

At the hour of 9 o'clock to-night the committees of the two Houses of Congress, the entire delegation of the State of North Carolina and the special committee from the State, with the sad family and friends, will leave for Raleigh where the body will lie in state in the capitol to-morrow.

LYING IN STATE.

The State Capital Pays Tribute to the Great Dead---Who will be Senator?

(Special to the CAUCASIAN.)

Raleigh, N. C., April 17.

The remains of the late Senator Vance, accompanied by the committees of escort and the family and numerous friends, arrived here this morning. The Casket was escorted by a vast concourse of people to the rotunda of the Capitol, where the body lay in state till this afternoon, when the funeral party left for Asheville, where the interment will take place to-morrow. A large memorial meeting, at which Gov. Carr presided, was held in Metropolitan Hall last night.

WHO WILL BE SENATOR.

Ex-Gov. Jarvis is here and many think that he is certain to be appointed by Gov. Carr to fill Vance's unexpired term, but if Gov. Carr is wise he will appoint S. B. Alexander. In fact it would be good politics in Jarvis to advise the Governor to appoint Alexander. Then they could form a combination against Ransom and Henderson. But the next Legislature may not select any of them.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

VANCE'S BOYHOOD AND YOUTH.

The Good Influences of His Mother in the Formation of His Character.

(Charlotte Observer.)

The ancestors of Zebulon Baird Vance, as far back as the family records can be traced, were sturdy Irishmen in County Tyrone. It is written in the family history that Andrew Jackson, of Mahtadelt, married a daughter of John Vance, and emigrated to America where a son, Andrew, was born, who afterward became President of the United States.

David Vance, grandfather of Zebulon B. Vance, was wounded at the battle of King's mountain, where the British leader Ferguson, was killed. His son, David, was the father of the lamented subject of this sketch. David Vance, who lived in Buncombe county, married Margaret Myra Baird, the daughter of Zebulon Baird, a trusted and honored citizen of Buncombe, and member of the State Legislature, and the issue of that marriage were two sons, Robert Brank Vance, Jr., named for his illustrious uncle, who was killed in a duel by Samuel P. Carson, as the result of a quarrel between the two men, brought on by the successful election to Congress of Carson over Vance; the other son was Zebulon Baird Vance. He was born May 13, 1830, not far from Asheville. The father died early, and on the anxious and careful Christian mother devolved the rearing of the children.

THE YOUNG ZEB.

Perhaps if men could read destiny they would accord to this humble, patient, prayerful mother much credit for the success attained by this Chrysostom in statecraft, whose end a great Commonwealth is now mourning. At any rate the lad was a frolicsome youth, full of animal spirits, mischief-loving, and with his full share of the old Adam in his composition. He was at times inclined to be wild and wayward, and tried to the utmost the souls of his mother and teachers. His youthful pranks were proverbial in his mountain home, and it sometimes strained the rigors of a Presbyterian training to keep his little feet in the paths of rectitude. Yet there was no malice, no spitefulness, no vindictiveness in the child's disposition. He was soon penitent for his misdeeds and little errors, and the measure of his forgiveness always heavily overbalanced the sum total of his childish recreancy. Indeed all this was merely the beginning of that "simple outgushing of volatile and irrepressible humor," which characterized his whole life, and which, added to his rugged honesty, his fixity of purpose, and his surpassing love for his people, worked together to entwine him in the heartstrings of old North Carolina, his later mother, who now weeps for him with a grief far more poignant than ever that of her whose tears, perhaps, fell upon his cradle and trundle-bed.

CALHOUN AND THE BOY VANCE.

One of his biographers relates a pretty story of his early days, describing the meeting of the great statesman, John C. Calhoun, and the wild rollicking mountain boy. Calhoun was traveling in the mountains and stopped for the night where Zeb lived. Says the biographer:

"Attracted by the vivacity and quickness of the boy, and rather amused at the sprightliness of his manner, he invited him to take a walk, and conversed for some time with him. He so impressed young Vance's mind by the picture he drew of what he might be if he would only cultivate his mind and

News-Observer-Chronicle in issue of April 14th, 1894, says: "Let this congress be make memorable in the annals of our country as the 'ten dollar congress.' The people will applaud its action." Very good, except the last sentence. The people will think and say that the "ten dollars" was a bad investment.

North Carolina should erect a monument to the memory of Senator Vance. THE CAUCASIAN is ready to co-operate to that end.

A RETIRED BUSINESS WOMAN.

A Page From Her History.

The important experiences of others are interesting. The following is no exception: "I had been troubled with heart disease 25 years, much of that time very seriously. For five years I was treated by one physician continuously. I was in business, but obliged to retire on account of my health. A physician told my friends that I could not live a month. My feet and limbs were badly swollen, and I was indeed in a serious condition when a gentleman directed my attention to Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and said that his sister, who had been afflicted with heart disease, had been cured by the remedy, and was again a strong, healthy woman. I purchased a bottle of the Heart Cure, and in less than an hour after taking the first dose I could feel a decided improvement in the circulation of my blood. When I had taken three doses I could move my ankles, something I had not done for months, and my limbs had been swollen so long that they seemed almost putrified. Before I had taken one bottle of the New Heart Cure the swelling had all gone down, and I was so much better that I did my own work. On my recommendation six others are taking this valuable remedy."—Mrs. Morgan, 569 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, a discovery of an eminent specialist in heart disease, is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee or sent by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from all opiates or dangerous drugs.

A BIG SUCCESS.

The Goldsboro Minstrel Company composed entirely of local talent, made its debut at the Goldsboro Opera House last Thursday night. When the curtain rose the "boys in black" must have been delighted to see one of the largest audiences that ever packed the Opera House. The company consisted of Mr. R. C. Rivers, of THE CAUCASIAN office, manager; and Messrs. Jas. Baker, W. A. Tudor, Chas. Pearl, G. W. Ward, Nathan Berger, G. W. Thompson, L. Cohn, Chas. Barnes, L. D. Giddens, Jr., S. G. Fry, H. W. Fuller, R. M. Phillips, and H. D. Conover. Miss Fannie Giddens, Pianist.

The programme consisted of two parts, entirely different and each a decided hit. The audience was amused and highly entertained from beginning to end. Every one present voted the entertainment a decided success and besides the venture was a gratifying financial success to the company. The Goldsboro Minstrels can count on another packed house when they appear before the footlights again.

GOV. TILLMAN TALKS.

THE DEMOCRATS OF THE SOUTH SHOULD JOIN IN WITH THE POPULISTS.

THE NEWSPAPERS THAT ARE PAID HIRELINGS.

He Despises Cleveland and Mugwumps and Denounces the Gold Conspiracy—Wants an Upheaval in National Politics—How Much of a Populist He Is.

(Columbia State.)

Yesterday while a representative of the State was at the Executive Mansion, the Governor read a letter to him from a Populist of the West which he had received the writer stating therein that he admired the Governor's political course, except that he did not have the moral courage to come out squarely and say that he was a Populist. The Governor then referred to the fact that several Northern and Western newspapers had been speaking of him as the Populist Governor, and after deliberating a little said: "Yes, they call me a Populist. I will tell them that I am the truest representative of Jeffersonian Democracy in the lead in American politics to-day. Let me tell you, I don't see anything ahead now but for the Southern Democrats to combine their forces with the Western Populists and go into the next national campaign on new party lines. The Northeastern Democrats and the Republicans are now together. It is a combination of the moneyed interests.

The Governor then turning suddenly and in a somewhat excited and very emphatic manner, said: "I despise Cleveland and his Mugwumps. He is no better than the rankest Republican. He has destroyed the Democratic party. The South and West will be forced now to unite and have a complete reorganization of party lines. The people who are afraid of the negro and other questions will have to cast aside their fears on these scores and come together on the one line of fighting the money combination. Cleveland has been working under the dictation of the New York bankers and bargaining with them in the matter of the issue of bonds.

He promised the banks if they would take them there would be no more legislation on the silver question by this Congress. Congress passed the seigniorage act and he vetoed the bill, indicating plainly the nature of his bargain with the bankers. The whole thing is such a scheme of robbery that he ought to be impeached for it. It is a shame and a disgrace.

The idea of this great goverment having to beg a lot of shylocks for assistance is so outrageous that there is not any language too strong in which to characterize it. Cleveland is owned body and soul by these scoundrels. He secured his nomination at Chicago through the influence of a subsidized press, and what votes he lacked there after exhausting such means he bought with promises of patronage, which promises have been delivered. His attempt to brow-beat and debauch the Senators and Representatives was outrageous in the extreme. If those cowardly Congressmen up there had any appreciation of their duty to their constituency at home, they would impeach him.

"Consider the farce and treason to the interests of the masses of issuing bonds under a pretense of increasing the gold reserves when the same gold is paid in at one window and drawn out at the another with silver certificates, and the same process can go on till the silver certificates are exhausted and the people have to pay the interest."

"Well Governor, what is your idea of what ought to be done?" was asked. The Governor thought for an instant and then said: "Well, I'll tell you: I think that the silver men of this country ought to meet in convention at Memphis or St. Louis and organize a fight to control the next congress. Let the west and the South cast aside all questions upon which they now have any differences and get together. It is a fight between gold and silver or poverty and prosperity. One more word as to Mr. Cleveland. I think that it is most damnable and outrageous, his being dictated to and bought up by those bondholders. It is debasing his office.

He is abusing his power to dicker with such people and barter away the people's blood even upon the pretext of financial relief.

"The newspapers which are snarling and snapping at my heels as being a Populist are the paid hirelings of his bosses. I am a Populist in the sense that I am for the people's rights, but there are many planks in the Populist platform which I do not endorse. If the silver Congress men will issue a call for a silver convention, and carry the war into Africa, we will teach those blood-sucking gold thieves a lesson in politics such as they have not had since Jackson's campaign against the banks. The farmers in the South and West will move on to Washington in a solid boby and demand legislation that will give them relief from the gliding poverty produced by 6-cents cotton and 30-cents wheat."

apply himself to study, that the imaginative boy resolved to study in earnest, and to make his mark among those 'whose names never die.' Acting upon this advice he entered Washington College, Tennessee, remained there two years, going thence to Newton Academy; his funds failing, he acted for a time as clerk at the Warm Springs. Here he was thrown in contact with the first men of Western Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee. He improved these opportunities. The spark kindled by the great Calhoun was fanned into an ardent flame; and as soon as he could command the means he entered as a student at the University, where he was noted for the quickness of his mind, and his 'irrepressible impudence,' which, like the wind, bloweth where it listeth; all yielded a willing homage to its irresistible and magic influence."

VANCE THE LAWYER.

His Ready Wit and Repartee Before Both Judge and Jury.

Among the great North Carolinians whose portraits adorn the alumni gallery of the Dialectic Society is that of Senator Vance. And although not far from it hangs that of James K. Polk, no Carolina youth at the University, with an overflowing ambition, but would turn to the picture of the great war Governor, in choosing a patron saint from the calendar of patriots. This picture of Vance represents him in his early manhood, and is much different from the widely disseminated portraits of the present time. It is the Vance that led the Twenty-ninth North Carolina Regiment in the early days of the war; it is the Vance that ran the blockade with his vessels and sent clothing and supplies to the ragged, barefooted, and hungry Tar Heels in the army of Virginia; it is the able war Governor; it is the Vance who led his people in 1876 "out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage"—it is very different from the statesman with the snow of wintry age upon his locks.

Senator Vance only spent one year at the University—he was there in '52—but even to this day the most delicious of Chapel Hill traditions are those that cluster round his name. He studied law there, and no student takes a thorough University course who leaves without hearing "Old Pres." [Dr. Kemp P. Battle] tell about the famous moot court in which Vance was the leading lawyer.

After leaving college Vance hung out his shingle in Asheville, the county seat of Buncombe. One day a crowd was seen running into the old court house from all parts of the public square.

"What's the matter?" was the universal cry of the excited crowd.

"Two young lawyers, Zeb Vance and Gus Merrimon, had a fight—that's all," answered the few who had got in soon enough to witness the speedily-suppressed affair.

Who would ever have thought then that these two youthful rivals [and their rivalry was life-long] would ever have become North Carolina's two greatest men?

AN EARLY TRIUMPH.

Vance's vigor, determination, wit and power of repartee soon won him friends and clients. "Nick" Woodfin was then the leader of the Buncombe bar, if not of the bar of all western North Carolina at that day. He was an exceedingly able man, and jealous of his pre-eminence and leadership. The young legal fledglings generally stood in awe of him. But young Vance, with an audacity that appalled all onlookers, won a victory over him one day.

Vance was engaged as counsel in a case on the opposite side from Woodfin. The latter got up to address the jury. He was a tall, spare man, of a most nervous temperament, high-pitched voice, wild gesticulation, sarcastic and sardonic. He worked himself into a furor in this instance. The wild waves of his oratorical anger followed fast and furious after each other, and it seemed as if the cause of Vance's client would be drowned in judicial depths a thousand fathoms down. Col. Woodfin fairly sawed the air in the violence of his gestures. After a protracted speech he left his righteous cause to the jury.

Then the doomed young lawyer got up to reply. All eyes were turned upon him, and he was the object of great chunks of pity.

Walking boldly up to the jury, he struck a Woodfinian attitude and retained it. He turned himself into a kind of Nick Woodfin kaleidioscope. He never opened his mouth, nor spoke a word, but continued to reproduce all of Col. Woodfin's distorted gestures. He sawed the air, he writhed, twisted, contorted and made grimaces for the space of five minutes or so, and then sat down, with a cool confidence that seemed to say "I have fully answered all my opponent's arguments."

Court and court house were convulsed with laughter, and whether he gained a victory for his client or no, he gained a great one for himself.

A LEGAL WATERLOO.

His wit, sarcasm and repartee helped him win many victories, but they could not always tide him over deep water. Dr. Battle tells a good story of him when he was a much more matured lawyer, perhaps when practicing in Charlotte, while a partner of Major C. Dowd's. He was defending a man for assault and battery. His client was accused of biting off his victim's thumb during the fight. Vance had a witness whom he wanted to testify to certain points but was not anxious for him to tell too much.

"Did you see this fight?" Vance asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Did you see this defendant bite off the plaintiff's thumb?"

"No sir."

"Stand aside," said Vance hastily. "Hold on there," cried the plaintiff's counsel. "Tell all you know about this fight."

"Well," said the witness, "I never seed him bite it off, but I seed him spit it out."

VANCE THE POLITICIAN.

His Unusual Success in Opposing Men of Long Experience.

Vance was eminently a man of the people. The common people heard him gladly. He was democratic in every fibre of his being. As the hearts of Whitfield and the Wesleys in the domain of religion went out to the common people; as Dickens in literature lived with them and loved them, so Vance in politics and statecraft represented them and championed their cause. He might be likened to Lincoln and Greeley in this respect.

A mountain contemporary, an humble, plain man of the people, once drew a picture of Vance at a country political gathering in his early career, and represented him a waring a gray jeans suit, with breeches too short to hide his white, knit cotton socks that disappeared inside his square-toed brogans. He hobnobbed with the country store and the country post office crowds in those days to the extent of making plausible the charges of demagogy brought against him, and only in the light of subsequent events can they be proven untrue.

In 1854 he was elected by a handsome majority to the State Legislature on the Whig ticket, and from that his career was a series of triumphs. In 1856 he canvassed the mountain district against Col. David Coleman for the State Senate, but met with defeat.

In 1858, Gen. T. L. Clingman, then a Democrat, and holding a seat in the United States House of Representatives, was appointed by Gov. Bragg to fill a vacancy in the United States Senate, caused by the resignation of Hon. Asa Biggs. Col. Coleman and Hon. W. W. Avery, of Burke, entered the field as candidates for Clingman's late position, and both were strong men. Just then, young Vance, at the age of twenty-eight years, sprang into the arena, when Col. Coleman withdrew, leaving the struggle to Avery and Vance, the latter gallantly carrying off the trophy by overcoming a Democratic majority of over 2,000.

In 1859 Mr. Vance was re elected to the House, defeating his old opponent, Col. Coleman, and served until March, 1861. In Congress Mr. Vance pursued a conservative course and was strongly opposed to secession, but, true to his State, he hastened to her aid when he saw that she would pass an ordinance of withdrawal from the Union, and was a captain in the Confederate army when that ordinance was passed.

HIS LATER LIFE.

War-Governor and Statesman—His Great Campaign in 1876.

A citizen of North Carolina was walking along a dusty road in Virginia on a sultry June day. A white-haired old man in a rattling vehicle rode along and with true Virginia hospitality gave the Tar Heel a lift. "From North Carolina, are you?" he said. "I knew your great statesman, Zeb Vance. Fought along his regiment in the war. He was the most popular man in the army, and if the Confederacy had been established, he would have been its next President after Jeff Davis." This by the way of illustration of the popularity of Vance among the old veterans.

Vance's ability as war Governor was a surprise even to his friends. He was beyond question the greatest of the war governors. His later services to the State are to well known to be repeated here.

In history he will perhaps shine brightest as the Joshua who led his people out from the Wilderness of Reconstruction to the Promised Land of self-government and constitutional liberty in 1876. His opponent, Judge Settle, was his equal in ability in that campaign, but Vance triumphed as the leader of a righteous cause. Perhaps his greatest victory in that bitter contest was in his own home—Charlotte. Mr. Settle was repeatedly interrupted in his speech that day. Vance appealed in vain to the crowd to give his opponent a fair hearing.

Finally in a burst of indignation, Mr. Settle said: "Governor Vance, I'll be one of ten men to go with you and tie the first man that interrupts me again!"

Amid enthusiasm and excitement beyond expression, Mr. Vance replied without an instant's hesitation: "Mr. Settle, I can't speak for your crowd, but the men I represent are the kind that can't be tied!"

Truly, "this was a man."

THIS IS NOT CLEAR.

"The financial ills we now experience have their sole origin in this usurpation, and the only cure that is possible is not in John Sherman's class legislation, nor in the Populistic idea of a large issue of fiat money, but to divorce the government from the banks and let the people in the States manage their own currency matters"—Raleigh N.-O. C.

Capt. Ashe says "divorce the government from the banks." The trouble now is that the banks, a money monopoly, controls the currency, instead of the people through their representatives in congress. The panic last summer was a bankers' panic. But Capt. Ashe says that the States should control it. Does he mean the people through their Legislators, or does he mean simple bankers—a private money monopoly, that is nothing more than a branch and an agent of the national banking monopoly? In such a case would the people manage their currency? Any man knows they would not. And as for John Sherman's class legislation on money, that is just what the Democratic party is now endorsing and what the People's party is condemning. On the money question there is no difference between the Democratic and Republican parties. Capt. Ashe does not make himself clear.

PEOPLE'S PARTY.

The Haywood County Populist Meeting.

On the 9th of April, in the town of Waynesville, Haywood county, N. C., the Populists of said county held a meeting to exchange views as to the wisest course to pursue in the coming campaign. It was unanimously agreed that in State politics they remain uncommitted, and see no sacrifice of principle for all those who desire an honest election law and an elective county government to co-operate to that end; but stand diametrically opposed, in National politics, to any fusion in which there would be a sacrifice of one syllable of the Omaha Platform.

The meeting was fairly attended in which were once-leading lights of both old parties, and in which there was greater unanimity of sentiment, and more determined wills to fight the impending revolution at the ballot box patriotically, honestly and peaceably, than shirk their duty and responsibility and await the final result. They, also, urge upon all patriotic citizens all over the State to put on the whole armor, and join them in them in this crusade against wrong and oppression, assured that "the God of battles" will give us the victory.

GEO. W. HAHN.

To the People's Party of Lenoir County.

You are requested to meet in your several townships May 12th, and organize by electing a township executive committee of three or five members, also to appoint delegates to the county convention to meet in Kinston, May 19th, for the purpose of organizing and selecting a county executive committee and appointing delegates to the State Congressional, Judicial and Senatorial convention. Time and place to be designated hereafter.

Men, of all parties, who wish good government, and who feel like they have done their duty by the old parties by giving them "a chance" and that said parties have abused the "chance" by contracting the currency and demonetizing silver, thereby bringing upon this fair land the present financial blight, are invited to participate in these township meetings and give us their aid in correcting the great wrongs that have brought such destitution among and upon the people.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

Young Folks' Post Office.

Chapel Hill, N. C., April 1, '94.

Mr. Editor:—I will ask the little cousins where was Moses when he died and where was he buried? I am a Third party little girl.

From your friend and well wisher,
Lizzie Sparrow.

Newton Grove, N. C., April 3, '94.

Mr. Editor:—As I have not seen any letters from Newton Grove I will write one for my first time.

I am going to school every day. I like to go very well. I like to read the "Children's Corner." The questions, I am sure, cause many to study and thereby enlighten our minds. I will answer a few questions: North Carolina is noted for the cultivation of corn, cotton and tobacco. Noah built the ark of gopher wood. The ark was three stories high. Vermont is noted for its wool-growing and stock raising. It excels all other States in the cultivation of maple sugar. Moses was on Mt. Sinai forty days and nights. Mississippi was admitted as a State in 1817.

I will ask a few questions hoping some of our little friends will answer: Who became Governor in 1792? How long did Gov. Drummond stay in North Carolina?

I will close wishing THE CAUCASIAN much success.

Your unknown friend,
Harmon Britt.

Matthews, N. C., March 18, '94.

Mr. Editor:—As I have seen so many nice letters from the children it put me in the notion of writing too. I am twelve years old and I love to read the letters in the childrens column. I will ask some questions.

Who was the father of Zebedee's children?

What were the last words of Sir Walter Scott?

What Apostle was shot to death with arrows.

I will answer Aleck V. Carson's questions. Jehovah occurs in the bible 6,855 times. Abraham's second wife was Keturah. Sarah died at Hebron at the age of 123 years and was buried in the cave of Machpelah.

As my letter is getting lengthy I will close for fear of the waste basket.

Carrie Yandle.

Mr. Editor:—I would like to join the children's column. I am a little fellow 7 yaars old. I fear the waste basket, but will try, as papa is a whole-souled Peoples Party man; so am I.

Answer to last week's charade: Goldbug king Grover Cleveland.

I will close, wishing success to the CAUCASIAN and its noble editor.

P. S.—I forget to tell you our baby is named Butler. Hope he will be such a man as he is named for.

Yours truly,
W. Lawrence Clark.

given, and loans made and students canvassed for without inquiring as to whether they were Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Friends, Hebrews, Moravians, church members or non-church-members. The University has been freely offered to all. The Baptist are as welcome here as any body else. They cannot afford to turn their back on the University, and they are not doing it. Should they do so, they would deprive their own boys of splendid opportunities now freely offered them.

Let Wake Forest educate all the boys it can. Let the University educate all the boys it can. There are more poor boys than both can help. There are five thousand boys of means waiting to be inspired with love of learning. There is abundant harvest for all the reapers. The University will soon establish a Common Hall with free lodging and board at cost for needy boys. The poor Baptist boys will be welcome here too. I shall never refuse to help a boy because he is a Baptist, and I shall hail the day when Wake Forest College furnishes education entirely free, with a roll of five hundred students and an endowment of one million dollars.

THE MECKLENBURG DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE OF 1894.

is strewn with thorns, and dangers are set about. Millions with watering eyes are looking toward the flashpots and millions die before they reach the promised land. Still they press on and take chances with the fickle people. Down on bended knees they pray: "Send me, oh send me, and I will do you good." Some are sent but the rascals outnumber the patriots. They as a whole out-Herod Herod. Then it is wise to repudiate Herod and his hosts.

Napoleon said on his retreat from Moscow: "There is but one short step from the sublime to the ridiculous." The people once spread branches and threw their garments in the way of the King of Peace to ride upon, shouting Hosannas. A few months ago the whole land sounded the paans of victory and all hail to the chief who in triumph advances. To-day the cry goes forth: "Repudiate him; repudiate him! or the people will repudiate us." Save ourselves we must. Rehoboam has abandoned Israel.

Near fifty thousand freemen (according to their count) declared their independence in November '92. The danger arises right here of these two armies making common cause. They are so near together yet so far apart. One misstep made by Col. Caldwell will place the Democratic hosts in the People's party camps. Just a change of name and a change of machinery. That is all.

This is the very thing to be guarded against; for those who have done good party service may be snowed under or not fully appreciated by a new regime. Then hundreds will be disappointed; new men, new ideas and new blood will run the government. This would be a political revolution and things old would be laid aside. We call upon the conservative men to shun this danger and save the State.

Braxton's first performance on getting into cool habiliments was to go over to his office and hunt through the book shelves for a volume in which he never before had felt the faintest interest—the Light Artillery Tactics of 1864. There on his desk lay a stack of mail unopened, and Mr. Drake was already silently inditing the summary note to the culprit Waring. Brax wanted first to see with his own eyes the instructions for light artillery when reviewed with other troops, vaguely hoping that there might still be some point on which to catch his foeman on the hip. But if there were he did not find it. He was tactician enough to see that even if Cram had formed with his leading drivers on line with the infantry, as Braxton thought he should have done, neither of the two methods of forming into battery would then have got his guns where they belonged. Cram's interpretation of the text was backed by the custom of service, and there was no use citicising it further. And so, after discontentedly hunting through the dust-covered pages awhile in hopes of stumbling on some codicil or rebuttal, the colonel shut it with a disgusted snap and tossed the offending tome on the farthest table. At that moment Brax could have wished the board of officers who prepared the Light Artillery Tactics in the nethermost depths of the neighboring swamp. Then he turned on his silent staff officer—a not unusual expedient.

"Why on earth, Mr. Drake, didn't you look up that point, instead of making such a break before the whole command?"

"I couldn't find anything about it in Casey, sir, anywhere," replied the perturbed young man. "I didn't know where else to look."

"Well, you might have asked Mr. Ferry or Mr. Pierce. The Lord knows you waste enough time with 'em."

"You might have asked Capt. Cram," was what Drake wanted to say, but wisely did not. He bit the end of his penholder instead, and bridled his tongue and temper.

"The next time I have a review with a mounted battery, by George!" said the post commander, finally, bringing his fist down on the table with a crash, "I just—won't have it!"

He had brought down the pile of letters as well as his fist, and Drake sprang to gather them, replacing them on the desk and dexterously slipping a paper cutter under the flap of each envelope as he did so. At the very first note he opened Brax threw himself back in his chair with a long whistle of mingled amazement and concern, then turned suddenly on his adjutant.

"What became of Mr. Waring? He wasn't hurt?"

"Not a bit, sir, that I know of. He drove to town with Capt. Cram's team—at least I was told so—and left that note for you there, sir."

"He did!—left the post and left a note for me! Why!—" But here Braxton broke off short, tore open the note and read:

"MY DEAR COLONEL: I trust you will overlook the informality of my going to town without previously consulting you. I had purposed, of course, asking your permission, but the mishap that befell me in the runaway of my horse prevented my appearance at the review, and had I waited for your return from the field it would have compelled me to break my engagement with our friends the Allertons. Under the circumstances I felt sure of your complaisance.

"As I hope to drive Miss Allerton down after the matinee, might it not be a good idea to have the dress parade and the band out? They have seen the battery drills but are much more desirous of seeing the infantry.

"Most sincerely yours,
"S. J. WARING."

"Well, for consummate impudence this beats the Jews!" exclaimed Brax. "Orderly, my compliments to Capt. Cram, and say I wish to see him at once, if he's back from stables."

Now, as has been said, Cram had had no time to change to undress uniform, but Mrs. Cram had received the orderly's message, had informed that martial Mercury that the captain was not yet back from stables, and that she would tell him at once on his return. Well, she knew that mischief was brewing, and her woman's wit was already enlisted in behalf of her friend. Hurriedly pencilling a note, she sent a messenger to her liege, still busy with his horses, to bid him come to her, if only for a moment, on his way to the office. And when he came, heated, tired, but bubbling over with eagerness to tell her of the fun they had been having with Brax, she met him with a cool tankard of "shandygaff" which he had learned to like in England among the horse artillery fellows, and declared the very prince of drinks after active exercise in hot weather. He quaffed it eagerly, flung off his shako and kissed her gratefully, and burst all at once into laughing narration of the morning's work, but she checked him:

"Ned, dear, don't stop for that yet. I know you're too full of tact to let Col. Braxton see it was any fun for you, and he's waiting at the office. Something tells me it's about Mr. Waring. Now put yourself in Mr. Waring's place. Of course he ought never to have made that engagement until he had consulted you, but he never dreamed that there would be a review to-day, and so he invited the Allertons to breakfast with him at Moreau's and go to the matinee."

"Why, that rascal Ananias said it was to breakfast at the general's," interrupted the battery commander.

"Well, perhaps he was invited there too. I believe I did hear something of that. But he had made this arrangement with the Allertons. Now, of course, if review were over at ten he could just about have time to dress and catch the eleven-o'clock car, but that would make it very late, and when Bay Billy broke away from Ananias nobody could catch him for over half an hour. Mr. Ferry had taken the section, Mr. Waring wasn't needed, and—Why, Ned, when I drove in, fearing to find him injured, and saw him standing there the picture of consternation and despair, and he told me about his engagement, I said myself: 'Why don't you go now?' I told him it was what you surely would say if you were here. Neither of us thought the colonel would object, so long as you approved, and he wrote such a nice note. Why, Ned, he only just had time to change his dress and drive up with Jeffers—"

"With Jeffers? With my—er—our team and wagon? Well, I like—"

"Of course you like it, you old darling. She's such a dear girl, though just a little bit gushing, you know. Why, I said, certainly the team should go. But, Ned, here's what I'm afraid of. Mrs. Braxton saw it drive in at nine-thirty, just after Billy ran away, and she asked Jeffers who was going, and he told her Mr. Waring, and she has told the colonel, I'll wager. Now, what you have got to do is to explain that to him, so that he won't blame Mr. Waring."

"The dickens I have! The most barefaced piece of impudence even Sam Waring was ever guilty of—to me, at least, though I've no doubt he's done worse a dozen times. Why, bless your heart, Nell, how can I explain? You might, but—"

"But would you have me suppose my big soldier couldn't handle that matter as well as I? No, sir! Go and do it, sir. And, mind you, I'm going to invite them all up here to the gallery to hear the band play and have a cup of tea and a nibble when they come down this evening. He's going to drive the Allertons here."

"Worse and more of it! Why, you conspiracy in petticoats, you'll be the ruin of me! Old Brax is boiling over now. If he dreams that Waring has been taking liberties with him he'll fetch him up so short——"

"Exactly! You mustn't let him. You must tell him I sent him up with your team—yours, mind you—to keep his engagement, since it was impossible for him to come back to review ground. Of course he wouldn't expect him to appear afoot."

"Don't know about that, Nell. I reckon that's the way he'll order out the whole gang of us next time. He's had his fill of mounted work to-day."

"Well, if he should, you be sure to acquiesce gracefully now. Whatsoever you do, don't let him put Mr. Waring in arrest while Gwen Allerton is here. It would spoil—everything."

"Oh, match-making, is it? Then I'll try." And so, vexed, but laughing, half indignant, yet wholly subordinate to the whim of his beloved better half, the captain hastened over, and found Col. Braxton sitting with gloomy brow at his littered desk, his annoyance of the morning evidently forgotten in matters more serious.

"Oh—er—Cram, come in! come in, man," said he, distractedly. "Here's a matter I want to see you about. It's—well, just take that letter and read. Sit down, sit down. Read, and tell me what we ought to do about it."

And as Cram's blue eyes wandered over the written page they began to dilate. He read from start to finish, and then dropped his head into his hand, his elbow on his knee, his face full of perplexity and concern.

"What do you think of it? Is there any truth—" and the colonel hesitated.

"As to their being seen together, perhaps. As to the other—the challenge—I don't believe it."

"Well, Cram, this is the second or third letter that has come to me in the same hand. Now, you must see to it that he returns and doesn't quit the post until this matter is arranged."

"I'll attend to it, sir," was the answer.

And so that evening, while Waring was slowly driving his friends about the shaded roads under the glistening white pillars of the rows of officers' quarters, chatting joyously with them and describing the objects so strange to their eyes, Mrs. Cram's "little foot page" came to beg that they should alight a few minutes and take a cup of tea. They could not. The Allertons were engaged, and it was necessary to drive back at once to town, but they stopped for a moment to chat with their pretty hostess under the gallery, and then a moment later, as they rolled out of the resounding sally-port, an orderly ran up, saluted, and slipped a note in Waring's hand.

"It is immediate, sir," was his explanation.

"Ah! Miss Allerton, will you pardon me one moment?" said Waring, as he shifted whip and reins in the left hand and turned coolly up the leafy road. Then with the right he forced open and held up the missive.

It only said: "Whatsoever you do, be here before taps to night. Come direct to me, and I will explain. Your friend, CRAM."

"All right," said Waring, aloud. "My compliments to the captain, and say I'll be with him."

One More Letters---The Caucasian has Struck the Key Note.

No. 41.

Magnolia, N. C., March 26, '94.

Mr. Editor:—I have read with interest the letters in THE CAUCASIAN suggesting ways and means of securing a fair and honest election under the present laws. With your permission I will add my mite.

First—Secure, if possible, the appointment of honest men for Registrar and poll holders. If that can be done then there would be an honest election.

Second—Appoint a committee of three or five to see that each voter is properly registered. Attend to this just as soon as the book is opened for registration.

Third—Let it be distinctly understood that no "bull pen" arrangement will be tolerated.

Fourth—On election day place your ballots in charge of a good man and let him keep a strict account of each one as it is called.

Fifth—When the boxes are opened see that that the ballots are filed as they are taken from the box and counted—a needle and thread to string them on will do.

Sixth—See that the returns are properly filled out and sealed and delivered to the canvasser appointed and let him know that he is responsible for the delivery of such returns at the court house unaltered. Be on hand to see that the canvasser has done his duty.

I believe if this plan is followed we will come as near an honest election as possible under present conditions. Watch every man who has anything to do with holding the election. The man who is honest will not care for being watched and it is the other fellow we are after.

Yours for Reform,
MORD. TAYLOR

TRADE MARK. The Pastilles FOR WEAK MEN

Made so by too close application to business severe mental strain, Sexual Excesses in middle life, or vicious habits contracted in youth. WEAK MEN are victims to Nervous Debility or Exhaustion, Wasting Weakness, Involuntary Losses with Early Decay in Young and Middle Aged lack of vigor and strength, with sexual organs impaired and weakened prematurely in appearance old age. WHEN WE SAY CURE we speak from knowledge of results in many thousand cases treated and cured in the past fifteen years.

Our method of introducing Prof. HARRIS' SOLUBLE MEDICATED PASTILLE treatment is one which commends itself to all sensible persons—for the reason that we supply it upon their judgment of its value. Nothing in the way of expense beyond a postal card and a two cent postage stamp is asked. The postal card for use in sending us their full address and the postage stamp for the letter returning the statement of their case for which we supply them with question blank, to be filled out, and a self-addressed envelope for use in returning it when filled.

Free TRIAL When we receive the statement on blank we prepare their days treatment and forward it by mail prepaying postage. Along with the treatment we send full directions for using. The treatment causes no pain or inconvenience and does not prevent attention to business.

We leave the matter of sending orders entirely with those using the free trial treatment. Having satisfied those sending for trial packages of our ability to benefit them, we feel that they are more largely interested than ourselves in continuing the use of the Pastilles. We make the prices as low as possible, and the same to all. They are as follows: $3.00 for one month; $5.00 for two months; $7.00 for three months.

We ask all persons needing treatment to send their address on postal or by letter. All communications confidential and should be addressed to THE HARRIS REMEDY CO., Mfg. Chemists 99 BEEKMAN STREET, NEW YORK. ESTABD 1875. INCORPD 1890. CAPITAL $25,000

ABERDEEN, O., July 21, 1891.
MESSRS. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.: DEAR SIRS—I bought a bottle of your P. P. P. at Hot Springs, Ark., and it has done me more good than three months' treatment at the Hot Springs. Send three bottles C. O. D.
Respectfully yours,
JAS. M. NEWTON,

Capt. J. D. Johnston.

To all whom it may concern: I hereby testify to the wonderful properties of P. P. P. for eruptions of the skin. I suffered for several years with an unsightly and disagreeable eruption on my face. I tried every known remedy but in vain, until P. P. P. was used, and am now entirely cured.

Skin Cancer Cured.

Testimony from the Mayor of Sequin, Tex.

SEQUIN, TEX., January 14, 1893.
MESSRS. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.: Gentlemen—I have tried your P. P. P. for a disease of the skin, usually known as skin cancer, of thirty years' standing, and found great relief; it purifies the blood and removes all irritation from the seat of the disease and prevents any spreading of the sores. I have taken five or six bottles and feel confident that another course will effect a cure. It has also relieved me from indigestion and stomach troubles. Yours truly,
CAPT. W. M. RUST,
Attorney at Law.

For primary, secondary and tertiary syphilis, for blood poisoning, mercurial poison, malaria, dyspepsia, and in all blood and skin diseases, like blotches, pimples, old chronic ulcers, tetter, scald head, itch, erysipelas, eczema—we may say, without fear of contradiction, that P. P. P. is the best blood purifier in the world, and makes positive, speedy and permanent cures in all cases.

Ladies whose systems are poisoned and whose skin is a constant source of irritation, due to menstrual irregularities, are peculiarly benefited by the wonderful tonic and blood cleansing properties of P. P. P.—Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Aug. 14th, 1893.—I can speak in the highest terms of your medicine from my own personal knowledge. I was affected with heart disease, pleurisy and rheumatism for 35 years, was treated by the very best physicians and spent hundreds of dollars, tried every known remedy without finding relief. I have only taken one bottle of your P. P. P., and can cheerfully say it has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I can recommend your medicine to all sufferers of the above diseases.
MRS. M. M. YEARY.
